Mr. and Mrs. Timmons Are Dinner Hosts In Ranch Home

That gay hospitality which makes parties in the Howard Timmons home on Red Hill avenue, a coveted pleasure for all friends of the family, distinguished the dinner at Mr. and Mrs. Timmons entertained Wednesday evening.

As has been the case on various recent occasions, Mrs. Timmons called upon services of her daughter, Miss Betty Timmons, and Miss Betty West, daughter of the Z. Bertrand Wests, for assistance in serving the dinner courses. Guests found places at a table typical of the Harvest Home idea, with its charming decorative scheme harmonizing with the bright-berried vines used in embellishing the home.

Covers were placed for the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Timmons, and for Messrs. and Mesdames Dean Collier, Z. Bertrand West, Benny Osterman, Willis Mitchell, Gilbert Kramer, J. K. Hermon, Edward Hall, Charles Swanner, Mortimer Plum, Richard Emison and E. R. Gregory.

Informality prevailed in the after-dinner amusements, dancing being perhaps the most popular feature, although groups were constantly forming and re-forming for contract or the lively Hollywood Michigan.

Friends Are Informed Of Recent Wedding In Arizona

Announcement of the marriage in Yuma on Wednesday, November 20, of Miss Naomi Sands, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Sands of Newport road, and James Warwick Jr., son of the James Warwicks of west Santa Ana, was made today, to the interested surprise of friends of the young couple.

The wedding had not been anticipated as an event of immediate occurrence, but since a change in Mr. Warwick's business plans necessitated a sudden transfer to the north, the young people advanced their bridal date, and motored to the Arizona Grotto Green for the rites.

Miss Sands wore a blue traveling suit of simplicity of design, complete with a corsage cluster of gardenias. She is a graduate of Tustin Union High school and has been prominent in musical circles as a voice pupil of the Viset studios.

Mr. Warwick maintains an auto camp and gasoline station at Earlham where the young people will make their home.

Ceremony Has Setting In Wedding Chapel

Mrs. Helen Hanagan of Inglewood and John E. Bingle of this city were married at a quiet ceremony Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the Wedding Chapel, North Main street. The Rev. Mr. Tate was officiating minister.

Many flowers and tapers provided decorations for the wedding, attended by approximately 25 guests. The group was invited to the bridegroom's home, 1416 West Fourth street, for a reception, during which wedding cake and other refreshments were served.

The newly-married couple will live in Mr. Bingle's present home. Mr. Bingle, who has lived here for the past several years, is mechanic for Southern Counties Gas company.

Cooper-Trickey Wedding Given Indoor Garden Setting

Although vagaries of the weather forced a last minute change in plans for an outdoor wedding on the grounds of the Dr. James Workman home, 1905 Valencia street, the garden seemed carried into the home itself where a profusion of pink and white blossoms formed fragrant background for the marriage last night of Miss Thelma Trickey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Trickey of Irvine, and Fred Cooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Cooper of Tustin.

The Rev. Howard Nason of Tustin Presbyterian church officiated at the ceremony. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a smart brown wool ensemble with fur collar. Her flowers were white gardenias and lilies of the valley. Miss Anne Hilton attended as maid of honor, also wearing a brown suit with yellow roses.

Dignitaries Marilyn Peruzzi and Shirley Riehl were charming flower girls in their brief white wool pleated skirts worn with soft pink and blue sweaters. They scattered rose petals from white baskets tied with pink and blue tulle. Bobby Jean Cooper, nephew of the bridegroom, was ringbearer, carrying the circlet in white chrysanthemums with streamers of pink ribbons.

Soloist during the ceremony was Hugh Rannels, who sang "O Promise Me" and "At Dawning", accompanied by Mrs. Effie Matthews.

During the reception for 75 guests which followed the ceremony, Dr. Estelle Workman was joined in hostess duties by the bride's mother, who was gowning in a powder blue tunic costume worn with red roses.

The new Mrs. Cooper cut her three tiered wedding cake before the couple left for their honeymoon trip, destination of which they did not disclose.

On their return they will live at 417 Helena street, Anaheim, where the bridegroom is a steel worker. He is a graduate of Tustin Union High school as was his bride, who is well known for her professional dancing.

Gift Shower is Sequel To Quiet Wedding In Rectory

Although the rites uniting Miss Marie Titchenal and Joseph Anderson were extremely quiet Thursday evening, when the young couple went unattended to the rectory of St. Ann's Catholic church to take their wedding vows before the Rev. Thomas J. Butler, there was a gay sequel in a party given for the bride in the home of Miss Ruth Dennis, 501 Wisteria place.

The new Mrs. Anderson came directly from the wedding ceremony to the party, and was gowning in the graceful old rose crepe in which she was married. Her corsage bouquet of sweet peas, she divided into smaller clusters for the friends of her school days who had planned the party.

Mrs. Albert Dennis assisted her daughter in receiving guests and in presenting the games program. Miss Fredda Wagner and Miss Mildred McCullough made high scores in two different contests, and were suitably rewarded.

The many flowers which graced the home were matched with dainty blossoms centering the tables when a dessert course was served. As the final feature, guests showed the new Mrs. Anderson with all manner of lovely things to be used in the home she and Mr. Anderson are to occupy on Tenth street.

Party guests were all friends of the bride in grammar school days, and included with the hostess, Miss Dennis, the Misses Dorothy Renfro, Lois Lambert, Delores Brooks, Pauline Chapman, Mildred McCullough, Mabel Dixon, Evelyn Fraser, Harriet Howell, Justine Krook and Fredda Wagner.

The new Mrs. Anderson is the daughter of W. H. Titchenal, 817 Louise street. Mr. Titchenal is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Anderson of this city.

De Molay Mothers

Assembling in Masonic temple Tuesday night at the same hour that De Molay chapter meeting was in progress, De Molay Mothers' circle devoted the interval to planning attentions for young men of the order.

Leading in these affairs will be the Christmas dinner at which the chapter will be entertained in the temple on Tuesday night, December 17 at 8 o'clock. This will be a gala event indeed with Mrs. Roy Horton, president, in charge of general arrangements. There will even be a gift exchange among De Molays, who are limited to a ten-cent expenditure. The Mothers will make it a dish towel shower also, for the kitchen department of the temple.

While these plans were being made, De Molay members were conferring initiatory degree upon several candidates. Later, they were guests of Royal Arch Masons, who with their high priest, Frank Harwood, serve as sponsors to the young men. "College Rhythm," an entertaining motion picture, was shown, and the evening concluded with the serving of pie a la mode and hot chocolate, with the Mothers' circle assisting.

Hostess Plans Clever Gift Shower for Miss Johnson

Romance tinged all the merry games which Mrs. George S. Berry introduced Thursday night, for entertainment of guests bidden to her home, 1308 West Fifth street, in compliment to Miss Violet Johnson. For Miss Johnson, daughter of the C. E. Johnsons, of this city, is living in the land of romance, having just announced her betrothal to Wayne Bartholomew, and their plans for a January wedding.

The Berry home provided a Thanksgiving setting with its many flowers in which glimmers, chrysanthemums and the little orange fires of lantana, glowed. Receiving with the hostess, was her tiny daughter, Charlene, just 3 months old, but ready to welcome each guest with a merry smile as charming as her big dark eyes.

Prizes in the games contest went to Miss Alberta Sanford and Mrs. Charles Markwood, but chief interest in gift awards was attached to the presentation of shower packages to the honor guest. In preparation for this, Miss Johnson was compelled to don the razed garments of a farm lad, to make her the proper person to receive a "Thanksgiving basket." The basket itself, gay with turkey cut-outs and such rural touches as small pumpkins and cornstalks, held the loveliest of gifts for use and beauty in her future home.

To complete her hospitality, Mrs. Berry, assisted by her mother, Mrs. J. E. Hall, served homemade ice cream, angelfood cake, candies and coffee.

Her guest list included in addition to Miss Johnson and her mother, Mrs. C. E. Johnson, Mrs. C. I. Bartholomew, mother of her fiancé, Mesdames J. E. Hall, Donald Walker, Charles Markwood, Francis Hall, Everett Berry, David Lindsey, Robert U. Smith, Helen Carl, C. H. Berry, the Misses Norma Wilson, Betty Vorce, Evelyn Hutton, Maurine Dalton, Josephine Dalton, Alberta Sanford, Yvonne Nelson, Dolores Dalton, LaDora Catherman, Evelyn Chandler, Elizabeth Rinkler, Carol Erskine, Ruth Collins, Kathryn Conway, Lucille Howell and Nancy Holt.

Auld Lang Syne Group Has Holiday Meeting

Nearness of Thanksgiving gave a special holiday air to Thursday's meeting of Auld Lang Syne club in Long Beach where Mrs. Fannie Newsom, hostess, paid deference to the season by decking her home with flowers in vivid hues.

Each member added some inviting dish to the menu served at noon when two guests were entertained, Mrs. Elizabeth Hilliker and Clifford Small.

The day's program of needlework and gay reminiscences of girlhood days when club members were closely associated in school, had one important business feature in election of officers. Mrs. Estelle Harper of Garden Grove was named president; Mrs. Jennie Johnson of Laguna Beach, secretary, and Mrs. Emma King Wassum of Santa Ana, press chairman.

Mrs. Harper invited the club members to be her guests at their January meeting.

Present with Mrs. Newsom were Mesdames Estelle Harper, Lydia Mitchell, Glee Newsom, Mina Newsom and Carrie Chaffee, Garden Grove; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Small, La Habra; Mrs. Emma King Wassum and Miss Percie Head, Santa Ana; Mrs. Effie Kelly, Tustin; Mrs. Jennie Johnson, Laguna Beach; Mrs. Edith Lane and Mrs. H. C. Parmaly, Long Beach, and Mrs. Hilliker, Montebello.

DINNER SIDE-LIGHTS
Thursday night's membership dinner in Veterans hall was a gala reunion for a number of Legion auxiliary members. An especially warm welcome was accorded Mr. and Mrs. William Crisman. The latter has been ill for the past year. She enjoyed inspecting the cedar chest and its supply of gifts which will be awarded as a grand prize at the December 10 Christmas party. Incidentally, one of the most attractive contributions in the chest was representative of the fine needlework done by Mrs. Crisman. One of the members who was expected to attend the meeting, but who did not arrive until just in time to fulfill her duties as musician, was Mrs. Charles Maag (Zola Powelson) who laughingly explained that jury service prevented her arrival earlier in the evening.

HOPES FOR CHRISTMAS
Possibilities of a Christmas with their own people in Louisiana, are being entertained by Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Kloor, Jr., 1320 South Parton street, although even yet they are afraid to make any definite plans for such a happy eventuality. For Mr. and Mrs. Kloor are rarely privileged to remain in any one spot long enough to plan for holiday reunions, since the former's duties as special chemist with the sugar companies, send him here and there over the face of the globe. They have been in Santa Ana several months but are expecting to be transferred soon to the northern part of the state. Mrs. Kloor's charming personality has made her many friends, who have especially enjoyed her descriptions of Cuba where she and her husband have spent at least nine years. Their family circle includes also the important "Scottie," a thoroughbred Alredale who is an ardent traveler with them. The Kloors will probably eat their Thanksgiving turkey in Tracy, where Mr. Kloor is called next week on business.

IN NEW HOME
It is going to seem very natural for friends of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard G. Swales, to find the Swales family in the northern part of the city, for they have just taken possession of their recently purchased home at 2020 North Broadway, directly in the neighborhood where their home was for so long, a center of the city's social life. Almost the first of the many happy family gatherings to result from this move, was the "welcome home" dinner at which Mr. and Mrs. Swales were hosts last night following the arrival on the S. S. Malolo, of their son-in-law and daughter, the young Lyman Farwells, from their several weeks' trip to Hawaii. Mr. Farwell, the former Cathryn Swales, has been recuperating from a recent serious illness, and friends are all hoping that the voyage and stay in Honolulu have worked their promised magic in hastening her full recovery.

SORORITY TRIUMPH
Friends should see the pride with which Sigma chapter members, Beta Sigma Phi, survey the prominent place accorded their group in the current issue of "The Torch," national magazine of the sorority. For it carried a long story of the chapter generally, but of Miss Beulah May, sponsor, particularly. It included a fine portrait of Miss May, and one of her poems, a lovely thing written especially for the chapter house maintained at Laguna Beach this year. The story, which fills one full page and part of another, discusses Miss May's various artistic interests including sculpture, and especially her poetic writings, including the recently published book, "Bucca-ner's Gold." Since the story opens with a description of the breakfast which Sigma chapter tendered her a few weeks ago the title is "California Sigma Honors Its Most Distinguished Member, Miss Beulah May."

PRIVATE ROOTING PARTY
A cheering section of their own was established by a group of Stanford alumni who found it necessary to cancel plans for attending the Big Game this afternoon at Palo Alto. Mr. and Mrs. Milburn Harvey opened their Laguna Beach home where they were hosts for a radio party with dinner to follow. Among Santa Anans attending were Mr. and Mrs. Franklin West and Mr. and Mrs. George Baker.

World Study Group
Forty or more women of the Congregational World study group, felt repaid Wednesday afternoon for attending the meeting in the N. A. Beals home, 1016 French street, when they heard the Rev. T. T. Taam discuss constructive activities in China.

For months I've wanted a brown sugar icing that would be that flavor, without all the fuss and bother of cooking it. Well, here it is, sent in by a reader. It was tested today and used to ice a grand apple cake.

Three-Minute Icing
4 tbsps brown sugar
2 tbsps thick cream
1 tsp vanilla
1 tsp maple extract
1/2 tsp butter
Sifted powdered sugar
Mix brown sugar, cream and butter, melt all over hot water, then cool. Work into the cooled base sifted powdered sugar to make it as thick as required. Add flavoring extracts and spread on cake. Simple, isn't it?

I have a flock of brides to remember at Christmas and am asking you older housekeepers to share with me your best recipes for two.

At a revival until Monday.

Mrs. C. M. Halderman was in charge of the program which included readings by Mrs. Clara French and by Mrs. P. R. Arnold. Plans were made for the section Christmas party in December when Mrs. Ass Vandermaast will open her home, 425 South Birch street, for the afternoon event and gift exchange.

Mrs. A. R. Bennett and Mrs. L. M. Hill will form the refreshments committee, and Mrs. Arnold will arrange the entertainment program.

Present were the teacher, Rev. John T. Stivers, pastor of the church, the hosts, Mr. and Mrs. McIntyre, Messrs. and Mesdames George McConnell, Charles Morgan, George Olsen and Edward Story.

World Study Group
Forty or more women of the Congregational World study group, felt repaid Wednesday afternoon for attending the meeting in the N. A. Beals home, 1016 French street, when they heard the Rev. T. T. Taam discuss constructive activities in China.

The young man, recently completing his training at Pacific School of Religion, Berkeley, is pastor of the Chinese Congregational church, Los Angeles. The picture he painted of his native China, was intensely interesting, and included not only the man who developed the "One Thousand Character language," but such building operations as the newly opened highway connecting Canton in the south, with Peiping in north China; similar details in national growth and a description of the unified churches of the country. In this great religious program, all denominations are in accord, with the support of their individual home boards.

Mrs. Carey Haynes led devotionals with which the session opened, and at the close of the afternoon there was a social hour, Mrs. Beals had the assistance of a hostess group in serving tea and cookies, and a "Scripture cake," the gift of Mrs. Freeman H. Bloodgood. This cake, strikingly decorated, was cut with much ceremony, and the recipe, filled with Biblical allusions, found ready sale, netting the study group a nice sum.

THE TWYMITE
Story by HAL COCHRAN Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

Wee Duncy shouted, "Sure I'll smile, and I will stay here for a while. I guess you are a friendly sort, so I feel welcome here."
"I'm just a Twymite you see, as full of pep as I can be. There are a lot of other Twymites roaming somewhere near."
"This big grasshopper took me for a ride. Gee, you should see him soar up through the air with every leap. I finally wore him out."
"Then I lugged him across the ground until this pleasant spot was found. Imagine how surprised we were, when first we heard you shout."

"Perhaps I scared you. That was mean, but when you walked in on the scene, I too, was quite a bit surprised," the little elf replied.
"Where are the other Twymites, now? Please try and get them here, somehow." "I wish I could, but I am lost from them," wee Duncy sighed.
"What, lost? Well, don't you worry, son," the elf snapped. "It will be real fun to fix up a carriage, in which you can search around."
"Although the going may be rough, I'm sure, if you search far enough, your worries will be over, 'cause the Twymites will be found."

"Now, first of all, the carriage will be brought forth, and you'll get a thrill." The wee elf clasped his hands and very soon exclaimed, "Look there!"
Then Duncy shouted, in delight, "An acorn carriage. What a sight! An ant is hitched up to the front of it. I do declare."
"All right, hop in. The thing

A VANDERING CZAR

THE bleak stretches of Siberia cherish a weird legend that Czar Alexander I of Russia did not die, as announced, on Nov. 19, 1825, but that he quit the throne and took up the life of a wanderer. As proof, peasants in western Siberia reported that they had often seen a mysterious stranger, who resembled the czar, pass through their villages.

Officially, however, this comparatively liberal ruler had caught a cold and died. His death was mourned sincerely, for he had encouraged education and science and had instituted other reforms. His first important act, when he ascended the throne in 1801, was to free the serfs of the Baltic provinces.

The stamp shown here, picturing the ruler of Russia. It was issued in 1913 on the 300th anniversary of the founding of the Romanoff dynasty. This stamp, and two others, also were printed in 1915 on thin cardboard, with inscriptions on back, for use as money, as well as postage.

SPIRIT OF CONFIDENCE

Santa Ana merchants, confident that the 1935 Christmas season will be the most prosperous in years, are sparing no expense to acquaint buyers from all parts of the county with the advantages of confining their holiday shopping to local stores.

Plans are being pushed forth for a celebration marking the opening of the Christmas season. A fund of $2000 is being raised by merchants and industries to decorate the streets in a manner surpassing anything in former years. A circus and parade on December 3 will officially open the season. At the same time window displays and ornamental street lights will be flashed to the public eye.

Merchants conservatively estimate 25,000 persons will come here for the celebration on December 3. They will then be given a preview of stocks of the latest creations in every line of merchandise.

This vigorous effort on the part of the merchants, to instill into the people the holiday spirit, is commendable and shows unity that can spell only success.

BEST OF WISHES

It is with regret that we see J. F. Burke leave the newspaper game in Santa Ana; after years of interesting companionship.

For eight years Mr. Burke has endeavored to conduct a clean, wholesome newspaper in Santa Ana. His ideas have not always coincided with those of his readers nor with his employers, but it can never be said that he was not sincere in his efforts. And above everything else Mr. Burke has the ability to laugh in the face of misfortune and sorrow. His sense of humor was a continual joy to the men who worked with him.

His presence will be missed at The Register. He had the loyal support of his workers at all times. Never was there a time that Mr. Burke turned a deaf ear to the plea of one of his employees, either for financial or moral help. He has made many friends in the community who will wish him the best of luck. He has made some enemies, but no man can conduct a newspaper with the vigor of Mr. Burke without doing that. But even his enemies will wish him well in whatever endeavor he attempts.

TEST OF A LEADER

This play, "Tobacco Road," may have its faults as theatrical entertainment, but it does at least offer a fine test for the intelligence of the mayors of the cities in which it is scheduled to appear.

As you have probably heard, it depicts the lives of a peculiarly squalid and degenerate class of "poor whites" in the south. It is filled with profanity and is not exactly what you would call pleasant and sunny.

When it appeared in Chicago, Mayor Kelly banned it. It moved on to Detroit and was similarly banned there. Then it wandered to Cleveland, where Mayor Burton permitted it to be shown; and he remarked:

"The people of this town are their own censors. They can use their own judgment on the plays they want to see."

That sounds like good common sense. After all, there is no law requiring any citizen to attend a play which he thinks he won't like.

WEST SHOWS THE EAST

Eastern railroad executives might properly have a look at what their western brethren are doing these days. Bus and automobile competition is just as severe west of Chicago as east of it, and the westerners have the old-fashioned notion that one good way to meet competition is to cut prices.

So, after some experimentation, they have made permanent a flat two-cents-a-mile coach rate in all states west of the Mississippi. Hugh S. Siddal, chairman of the Western Passenger Association, points out that this cut, since the end of 1933, has boosted passenger traffic 50 per cent and during the first eight months of this year has increased passenger revenues by nearly $6,000,000.

The stunt seems to work, in the west. The man in the street may not know much about the railroad business, but he is apt to find it hard to understand why this program would not work equally well in the east.

FOR WANT OF A CAUSE

A new all-time low in something or other seems to have been set by the attempt to have Gov. Clyde L. Herring of Iowa arrested for betting a pig on the Iowa-Minnesota football game.

Governor Herring made his bet with Gov. Floyd B. Olson of Minnesota, and when his team lost he paid like a man, personally conducting a bewildered porker to the office of the Minnesota governor. And then some busybody back in Iowa sought to prosecute him for gambling!

It is not, perhaps, wholly dignified for the chief executive of a great state to make a bet on a football game. Maybe it can be argued that a governor has weightier matters to think about than a football game.

But this attempt to prosecute the man, as if he had opened a bookie joint and was accepting wagers from all comers, is one of the silliest stunts of the year.

Sayings Of Will Rogers

Don't tell me we got people that can read, and they haven't read Pearl Buck's great book on China, "The Good Earth."

It's not only the greatest book about a people ever written, but the best book of our generation. Even in China, the Europeans, and the Chinese say it's absolutely true, and there is few books written about people where they say it's good themselves.

I had an engagement to fly up to meet her, but it stormed that day, and I missed the treat.

So go get this and read it. It will keep you out of some devilment and learn you all about China, and you'll thank me.

(This football comment was written shortly before the death of Knute Rockne in an airplane crash.)

These post season football games never decide anything. But how would this one be? We have a team here called St. Marys. (Sounds effeminate.) But they haven't lost a game since the year of the gold rush.

Take them and Notre Dame, but take all the Checkos, Italians, Jewish, Swedes and Eskimos and all other nationalities off of both teams, then the Irish from both teams (they could get eleven) and then let the Irish play the foreigners.

That would outdraw any game in the world. Let Rockne coach the foreigners and Al Smith the Irish. That would be great.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—More important nowadays than speeches from the opposition is the effect of the results of straw votes on an administration in power.

Unquestionably, the Literary Digest's canvass of 10,000,000 voters is going to have a definite effect on the Roosevelt administration's attitude toward many public questions.

The first results of the poll, which show 53.2 per cent against the New Deal and 46.7 in favor of it, do not necessarily mean, of course, that the Republicans will elect a president. The question asked was whether the voters now approve the policies of Mr. Roosevelt, but presidential elections are not decided that way. What the voters are asked in a formal election is whether they prefer one candidate to the other.

Thus, many voters might disapprove of Mr. Roosevelt, indeed a larger number might disapprove than approve, but, in casting a ballot, they might also feel that the alternative offered them in the Republican platform and candidate is still more unsatisfactory.

In many an election, the choice for large groups of voters is often between two sets of negative attitudes. This will be especially true in 1936 with respect to the so-called liberal or radical vote. Many of the radicals are displeased with Mr. Roosevelt's policies. If they got straw votes, they would certainly register on the "no" ballots. But would they vote for a Republican of the conservative type?

Take, for example, the people who believe in the Townsend plan of old age pensions. They do not think Mr. Roosevelt's social security plan is adequate. This one item might influence their balloting today, but the opposing candidate next year might be even more unsatisfactory to them.

The main value of the poll now being taken is that it will reveal to the administration that the American people are by no means as solidly behind New Deal policies as they were.

Any alert political mind, under such circumstances, will seek to find out the causes for such falling off in an administration's popularity. The veteran observers of such trends will say that there is nothing unusual in a decline of prestige or popularity as an administration finds itself compelled to make decisions that affect various groups adversely.

The Roosevelt administration has alienated many different elements in the electorate, not purposefully, of course, but in the pursuit of what it believed to be the greatest good for the greatest number. Political judgment is right or wrong depending on whether it appraises accurately what really is the greatest good for the greatest number.

The existence of a conservative trend in the eastern states is taken for granted even among the Democrats. The more or less conservative wing inside the Democratic party has been trying to tell the young and inexperienced New Dealers that such a turn was inevitable and that, hence, erratic policies which unnecessarily disturb the economic situation are not conducive to an administration's popularity.

A significant turn-about, for instance, in the position of the New Deal here is to be noted in attitude expressed toward utility holding companies that fail to register. Formal announcement has just been made that criminal proceedings will not be started while the constitutional tests are being made on civil grounds. This is wholly different from the attitude that, a year ago, or even last summer, might have been taken. The disposition to recognize that court tests are the equal right of everybody is growing and it is also certain that, in deciding to impose no harassing tactics, the administration realized that utilities are part of the heavy industry drive being made just now to create more employment.

If the Digest poll should continue to show an adverse sentiment, or if the results are not materially changed and the ultimate balloting is indicative of a drop in administration popularity, the Democrats in congress who come up for election in November, 1936, will likewise try to trim their sails according to the political winds that appear to be blowing.

(The women of the country she ruled and ruined regarded Cleopatra as a third rater.)

NOT SO HOT

Cleopatra was not such a wonder,
So women historians say;
But she rarely committed the blunder
Of not getting always her way.
She dazzled the optics of Caesar.
Won many a monarch's regard;
And even old Tig-lath-pileser
Would have fallen for Cleo—and hard.
Yet all that she did was to sit by the Nile
Arrayed in a "come-hither" smile.
Troy's beautiful daughter, fair Helen,
Did not click with her sisters a mite.
Any robe that she thought she looked well in
They said was a terrible fright.
But Paris and King Menelaus
Observed to each other, "Old pal,
Let nothing whatever delay us
Till we capture that beautiful gal.
The women endeavor to discount her charms,
But gosh! what a neck, and what arms."

When Solomon first looked on the lady
Who was Sheba's adorable queen,
He said, that is no Sal or Sady.
That woman should rule a dome.
She has grace, she has spirit and beauty.
Just gaze on the curve of her brow!
I think it should be really my duty
To marry that lovely thing now.
But thousands of wives, with their hearts
Filled with gall
Said, "The old gent is slipping, that's all."

Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLENN FRANK

CONSOLIDATE THE RAILROADS

There are some 866 operating railroad companies in the United States.

This fact in itself is responsible for a wastefulness that should not be continued.

The total national railroad plant represented by these 866 operating companies should be consolidated into not more than a score of companies and the whole round of facilities integrated and modernized.

Unless this is done one or two things are ahead, namely, we shall see the railroad business continue as a relatively "sick" business or we shall turn to government ownership and operation.

Joseph R. Eastman, federal coordinator, is urging a greater consolidation of terminal facilities as a move to rectify the unsatisfactory nature of the railroad business as it now is.

But the trouble is deeper than too many terminal operations; the real trouble is too many operating companies.

Newer forms of transportation have cut very heavily into the business of the railroads, so that a general increase in the nation's business does not produce a comparable increase in the business of the railroads.

Freight rates and travel fares have been reduced to a point at which an increase in volume does not show a comparable increase in revenue and profit.

Following the World War Great Britain merged her some 120 railroads into four major companies and the result has been an efficiency and stability of the industry that could not otherwise have been possible.

Greater economy of operation, greater improvements in service and equipment, greater assurance of reasonable but stable profits are essential.

MEASURING GROWTH

This is a plea for all school children, and the babies in their cribs. Please let them alone and cease from measuring them by this new test and that new test. There is one certain test, and one only—the behavior of the child. As long as he behaves in healthy, ordinary fashion, a little good, a little not so good, a trace of angelic sweetness, a shade of unholy wickedness, an altogether happiness in living, let him alone. Forbear to test him.

If you saw a grower pulling up seedlings to see how they are growing; if you saw him trying, first this mixture, now that; changing the soil, poking about the roots of his charges, you would wonder at his brashness. Yet that is what happens to many children in this education-conscious world today. Everybody is helping to educate the children, to find what is the matter with them, and cure them and drive them ahead to some vague goal called success.

Hold your hand when tempted to try out another test. To the child who is being tested such an experience is a severe trial. Children, ALL children, want to succeed. Every one of them longs to win approval of the grown people about them, longs to shine in the face of their fellows. The slightest intimation that he is not so good, that he is failing to reach the high standards set for him, sends his spirit down.

Now a child grows best when his spirit soars. Affection, appreciation, acceptance of him as he is, fills him with power. He is ready to fight lions of lessons, of adjustments, of trial and pain. Take away that feeling of fitness, of security in the opinions of his nearest and dearest, and he has no courage, no strength to face the struggle.

School life is a daily struggle for children. Every new problem demands fresh vigor for its solving. Every new situation calls for release of reserve power. Each teacher that appears before him makes a fresh demand upon his vitality. He needs every ounce of power he can muster for the day's work. He needs to go to school every morning stimulated, eager, strong for the task ahead of him. If he was tested the night before and found wanting according to some standard set up by somebody, you can readily see that he has been unfitted for his work. The test has done harm.

Children are tested daily in the classroom, on the playground—everywhere that they are in action there is somebody, some force, measuring, adjusting, informing the child of his standing. The teacher tests her class regularly, repeatedly. Surely that is enough.

There is one certain test: the child's behavior. If he acts like a healthy child, sleeping well, eating heartily, playing happily, getting a passing mark in school, leave him alone. If he is failing, it is time to test him, but that test must be made by a skilled specialist, the physician specialist first; then, if he feels it is necessary, the psychologist. The less testing, the better.
